PROTEK ADDS FORMER GUIDANCE SOFTWARE CONSULTANT AND VETERAN LAW ENFORCEMENT INVESTIGATOR, TODD S. GLUD, AS DIRECTOR AND SENIOR CONSULTANT, E-DISCOVERY AND COMPUTER FORENSICS SERVICES

Protek International, a computer forensics, e-discovery, and investigations firm, today announced that Todd S. Glud has joined the firm as Director and Senior Consultant, Electronic Discovery and Computer Forensics Services. Glud is a recognized subject matter expert with significant experience in highly sensitive digital investigations including intellectual property and terrorism, as well as designing, leading, and executing large-scale, complex e-discovery projects.

Glud's responsibilities at Protek will include planning and conducting large-scale, complex and time-sensitive client projects related to e-discovery, performing computer forensic examinations in support of litigation and investigations, and contributing to Protek corporate strategic initiatives and leadership.

"We are thrilled to add Todd's impressive mix of proven, in-the-trenches expertise, unparalleled credentials, and client-centered focus to our team of professionals," said Keith Chval, Principal at Protek. "His addition reflects Protek's simple philosophy of providing clients with superior services through a highly skilled, straight-forward, and results-oriented approach."

Glud has served as a cybercrime-focused investigator with a federal law enforcement agency, as well as the founding manager of Guidance Software's Professional Services Midwest Regional operations. He also currently serves as an adjunct instructor for Guidance Software's training division.

Glud has extensive Federal court testimonial experience. In addition to the EnCE, EnCEP, and several other digital investigations and e-Discovery certifications, Glud holds a Bachelors of Science in Management from National-Louis University.

He may be contacted via phone, 630-986-8206, or e-mail: tglud@protekintl.com.
